OneNine Studios LLC announces the launch of its video game development studio, based out of New York City. They develop games for the handheld, mobile, PC and console platforms.

New York, NY (PRWeb) January 5, 2007 -- Top talent and experts from the video game industry have formed OneNine Studios, a development company devoted to the creation of video games. The company consists of veteran game designers, programmers and artists, with heavy experience creating games for handheld consoles, mobile phones, and web browsers.

OneNine's co-founder and President, Brent Boylen has brought together some of the industry's top developers. "Our people come from companies such as Activision, Gameloft, Digital Eclipse, Vicarious Visions, and Kush Games. They're all seasoned professionals and have all worked on several significant titles in their prior roles. Having them all in one company helps ensure that our development methodology is sound, efficient, and allows us to create great games," says Boylen.

OneNine's core teams currently focus on handheld and mobile platforms. OneNine's clients include both licensed and original projects for companies such as GoPets Ltd, Microsoft, Leapfrog, and Crackpot Entertainment. The company has used its talent and resources to build a solid foundation to propel themselves from as they seek new projects.

With over 34 years of combined experience, OneNine's team members have worked with every game genre on over 100 titles. Some of these include top sellers such as Spider-Man: The Movie 2, MLB 2K6, Spyro the Dragon: Season of Flame, Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events, and InuYasha: Demon Tournament.
